Very often when the ships of our Navy deploy, the not-so-new idea of a Cruise book is heard being discussed: FAR HORIZONS 83 was no exception. All officers and men of the Task Group 304.7 appreciate, I am sure, the initiative of the few who turned the idea into this fine record; to them we owe a special thanks.

It is also appropriate, herein, to commend all the members of our Task Group for their untiring support during the fourteen week deployment to the Far East. As the photographs in this book will show, it was not all fun. Yet the balance of hard work and relaxation were such that I hope many pleasant memories will remain with each of us. We can all be justly proud of the work we did and the contacts we made with the Navies of the six countries that were visited. In the words of one of our Canadian Ambassadors, "Professionalism and pride which the officers and men showed created a lasting and good impression upon those whom they met. In my observation they were superb representatives of their country".

Finally, what this book does not record is the support for our deployment from home, without this our task would have been much more difficult, in some cases impossible. To our staffs ashore and our loved ones...Thank you.
