N.S. V-54404 PERS. (N)

22 December, 1944.

Dear Flying Officer Barlow:

With reference to your letter of the 11th of December, 1944, it is regretted that, for security reasons, the Department is still unable to release any further particulars respecting the loss of H.M.C.S. "SHAWINIGAN" beyond those which have already been forwarded to you and published in the newspapers.

Your son's body was picked up by a ship of the Royal Canadian Navy, but she was not the one referred to in the newspaper clipping which you enclosed. Identification was made at that time by his National Registration Card and Identification Bracelet, and later, on arrival in Sydney, N.S., a positive identification was made.

The newspaper clipping which you enclosed is returned herewith.

Particulars of your son's death are being forwarded to the Secretary, Imperial War Graves Commission, Room 312, Transportation Building, Ottawa, Ontario, who is charged with the responsibility of permanently marking by the use of a uniform type of headstone the graves of His Majesty's forces, who die on service in the war. Should you require further advice in this connection, it is suggested that inquiries be addressed directly to that officer.

Yours sincerely,

 SECRETARY, NAVAL BOARD.

28 August, 1945.

Dear Flight Lieutenant Barlow:

Further to my letter of the 22nd of December, 1944, the Department is now able to release additional information regarding the loss of your son's ship and I am accordingly passing on the following particulars which will, no doubt, be of interest to you.

H.M.C.S. "SHAWINIGAN" sailed from Sydney, N.S., on the 24th of November, 1944, to escort a merchant ship to Port Aux Basques, Newfoundland, and arrived off Port Aux Basques that night. In accordance with orders she was then to carry out a patrol in the area for the duration of the night, after which she was to meet the same merchant ship the next morning and return with her to Sydney.

The merchant ship arrived in Sydney unescorted on the night of the 25th of November and after it was ascertained that "Shawinigan" had not appeared at the designated rendezvous to provide escort as instructed, searches were instituted and "Shawinigan" was discovered to be missing.

It was the opinion of the Department at the time that the ship had been torpedoed by an enemy submarine during the night of the 24th/25th of November, 1944, as submarines were known to be operating in that area; and this has since been confirmed from German evidence. Although no survivors were found, a few bodies were recovered by later searches, due to tidal movements, some distance from the area in which "Shawinigan" was known to be operating. As a result, the position of the sinking can not be exactly ascertained, although from German evidence and the Department's computation, it is estimated to be in the vicinity of the three mile limit off Channel Head, near Port Aux Basques, Newfoundland.

Sec. N.S.

Yours sincerely,

CORVETTE CREW SEASONED BY SOMBER DUTY

Toronto, Dec. 9 -- (C.P.) Boys stationed on the recently-built frigate Antigonish are no longer "green" after their experiences searching for the Canadian corvette Shawinigan, said sick berth attendant Edward D. Rasky of Toronto, in an interview today.

Home on compassionate leave from the Antigonish, he described the finding of the first of five bodies recovered from the corvette, lost on operational duty in the North Atlantic. He said it was the first real operation for the frigate which was built last June.

"There wasn't a sound throughout the whole ship, except for the faint throb of the engines", he said. "The sea had calmed. The men stood about the deck with tight lips. Then one of them suddenly dropped on his knees beside a body. He had recognized it as that of his buddy from the Shawinigan.

"He started to pray--there on his knees on the deck. It got us, all of us, I can tell you. We bared our heads--well, it gets you. The next day when we had 'battle stations' practice the boys really hopped to it."

He said the wreckage from the corvette was spread across the water for at least 20 miles.
