Dear Mrs. MacKenney:

Further to my letter of the 29th of August, 1944, it has now been learned from the Canadian Naval Authorities overseas that the body of your husband, Arnold Valentyne MacKenney, Supply Assistant, Official Number V-42713, Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, has been recovered and positively identified.

He was buried with full Naval honours at Douglas Bank Cemetery, Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland, on Friday, the 29th of September, 1944. The exact location of the grave in this cemetery is not yet known.

Your husband's grave is being cared for and will be temporarily marked with a specially designed wooden cross bearing his official particulars. While the Imperial War Graves Commission is the authority for permanently marking, by the use of a uniform headstone, the graves of His Majesty's forces who die on active service, it is understood that due to war conditions these headstones cannot be erected at the present time.

Yours sincerely,
OCT 10 1944
SECRETARY, NAVAL BOARD.

Mrs. Jennie MacKenney,

VANCOUVER, B.C.

ES

23 July, 1945.

Dear Mrs. MacKenney:

Further to my letter of the 3rd of October, 1944, I am passing on the following particulars regarding the Naval action during which your husband lost his life. This information has been released for publication.

H.M.S. "NABOB", a Canadian-manned aircraft carrier, in which your husband was serving, while operating with other units of the British Home Fleet was torpedoed by an enemy U-boat off North Cape, Norway, in August, 1944. Eleven Canadian Naval ratings lost their lives as a result of the disaster and several Canadian Naval ratings were seriously injured. The ship, although sustaining severe damage, returned to a north British port five days later.

The following is a synopsis of the newspaper account of the disaster in case you may not have read it:

H.M.S. "NABOB" was preparing to fuel three escort vessels when a U-boat fired a torpedo which caught her on the starboard side. A terrific explosion followed and the vessel listed to starboard and settled at the stern. Shortly thereafter two other torpedoes were fired at the ship, both of which missed. However, the first of these severely damaged H.M.S. "BICKERTON", a destroyer escort, which was later sunk.

H.M.S. "NABOB" was very seriously damaged by the torpedo but when it became apparent that there was a possibility of saving her, every effort was made by the crew to keep her afloat: aircraft were secured in the hangars and on flight decks, hatches and doors were closed, sealing off compartments of the ship, ventilators and fans were repaired and smoke and fumes were cleared from the engine room. In four hours the ship was able to make way slowly through the water.

After the torpedoing, a screen was maintained around H.M.S. "NABOB" by three Royal Naval destroyer escort ships. Nevertheless it was later found that the submarine was still trailing the ship, so two bombers were flown off the sloping deck and drove off the U-boat, while H.M.S. "NABOB" altered her course.

After a perilous trip due to the threat of enemy aircraft and U-boats, rough seas and her damaged condition, the ship finally reached a north British port.

May I again extend to you the sincere sympathy of the Department and express the hope that you may be afforded some small measure of consolation in knowing that your husband died in the performance of his duty and in the service of his country.

Yours sincerely,

Despatched by

Dear Mrs. MacKenney:

With reference to your letter of the 7th of September, 1945, it is regretted that the newspapers did not publish the fact that your son's body had been recovered and that he had been buried in Scotland. It is felt, however, that this is an oversight on their part as this information is available to them in the Official Casualty Lists issued by the Naval Service.

Regarding your further inquiry, I have been advised by the Director of Estates, Estates Branch, Department of National Defence, Ottawa, that effects of your late son were forwarded to your daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jennie MacKenney, 1028 Nelson Street, Vancouver, B.C., during April and May, 1945. As this official is responsible for the distribution and administration of the service estate of deceased naval personnel, it is suggested that further inquiries in this regard be addressed directly to him.

Yours sincerely,

SECRETARY, NAVAL BOARD.
